The Gardener's Corner

PROPAGATION

by Ruby N. Jones

Greetings, fellow gardeners! My subject today is about ways to start new plants. These are the summer days are ideal for starting new plants from the old. The many, many vines, ivy, philodendron, rose of Montana, the different bougainvilleas, kangaroo vine, and the rosary vine, can easily be propagated by cuttings. Simply clip the tips of the vines off in 3 or 4 inch pieces and place in a box that has been filled with sand and muck, placed under a citrus or other dense shaded tree. Leave space for watering at the top, and see that the box has good drainage. All these vines will propagate themselves if handled in this manner with the exception of the rose of Montana, or coral vine, and the rosary vine. These two vines have small round tubers, the coral vine tubers being under the ground, having been developed from a root of the mother vine, and the rosary vine has small round tubers at the base of some of its fleshy leaves. You can use these tubers to start new vines. Cut stem above and below a tuber, and set its base in moist sand (or vermiculite), and the fan started as soon as the venting dust was covered with soil. The fan started as soon as the venting dust was covered with soil. The fan started as soon as the venting dust was covered with soil.

Missouri Farmer May Have Answer

One problem leads to another this year for grain farmers in the present outlook. The 1954 crop is expected to far exceed commercial storage facilities, and grain on the market this year probably will be lower than last year's harvest. What to do about this situation much water are their doom.

Some plants root with great facility from cuttings; for example, Peperomia, African-violet, Gloxinia, Snake-plant, and Begonia. Also Beefsteak begonia.

With Peperomia, and African-violet the procedure is much the same except that it is not necessary for the leaf blade to touch the surface, because the new plants are formed at the base of the leaf stalk.

With sauwera the usual way is to cut the leaves into lengths of about 4 in. and keeping them right side up, insert them for about half their length in the rooting medium. An interesting thing about this method is that the striped leaves of the parent are not reproduced in the progeny. If you want to retain the longitudinal stripes of the parent, you must propagate by division of the rhizome or main root "crown".

The Chandelier plant, and other similar plants, form new plants, which may be cut off and placed in sand. These plants are very hard to propagate in so-called strawberry jars, and make nice conservatory plants.

If one does not have very much time, cuttings of different plants may be placed in the rooting medium in a large pot, and a battery jar covered over all. The jar will hold the moisture, and without further attention will root, with the exception of removing the jar for about 10 minutes every morning and water the moisture from inside.

When potting up the rooted cuttings, use flower pots large enough to contain the roots without crowding them, but no more. Water them thoroughly (with the exception of cacti) and keep somewhat shaded until they begin to form new roots, which will be about two weeks, then give them the aspect suited to their needs. Spraying them daily with clean water during the time they are getting settled in their new pots.

Side shoots from Chrysantheums may be detached from the parent plant and transplanted elsewhere to start new plants. Coleus may be propagated from tips of branches. The tips may be rooted in either water or soil. Cacti are easily rooted. Cuttings should be taken and placed in almost dry sand. They should be watered like other plants; they will root off at the base before rooting. These cuttings like to lay around for a day or two before being placed in the rooting sand medium. Cacti are truly the lazy man's plant. They actually thrive on neglect. Historically, this has proven correct, for the Armistice, which amounted to victory, was

Don't let your town be small, if it isn't growing as rapidly as some neighboring community, if you aren't new industries are passing it by.

Bigness isn't necessarily a blessing. When a small town spreads out and becomes a metropolitan city a lot of things happen to it that detract from the joy of living. It loses its charm, its warmth and its neighborly spirit.

Many tributes have been written to the small town but one of the best that has come to my attention was published recently in the Florida Municipal Record. It was taken from the Surface Creek News, published at Colorado, Colorado. It sums up the advantages of the small town so clearly and forcefully that I thought you would enjoy reading it. Here it is:

"A small town is where everybody knows your business and yet they make it their business if any one in the community needs help. It is where folks will take about you and then talk to you when the chips are down. It is where there has to be a fire to get anyone on the streets after 9 p.m. and yet there will be square dancing until 6 o'clock in the morning and not depend on hot music and cold

Help For The Asthmatic

"Variation time for most Americans means fun, relaxation and the resouping of physical resources. But for two million asthmatics it can be torture. For them the summer can be a time of labored, gasping breathing. The return of balmy weather means an upturn in the number of asthmatic attacks as well as in new cases.

Children under ten. With the increasing birth rate the number of asthmatics is expected to rise. Fortunately the average asthmatic attack is mild and is not dangerous. Frequent attacks, however, and forced breathing may stretch the lung tissue, possibly resulting in permanent damage.

Best way to treat asthma is, of course, to find out what specific allergen is responsible and eliminate it. This is often easier said than done, for the allergen is extremely difficult to uncover, and even if it is found, it may be difficult to eliminate.

Medical treatment is, therefore, often the most practical approach to the problem of bronchial asthma. The adrenal hormone epinephrine, but unfortunately this agent builds a "tolerance" in the patient so that after increasing doses are required. Antihistamines and sedatives, and more recently, hormonal drugs like cortisone have been used with varying results.

Drugs, epinephrine and theophylline, have been most helpful; the former acts to relax the contraction of muscles, the latter widens the passageways of the bronchial tubes. These two drugs have been combined into a single tablet, Tonal, which has been found to be a sedative to relieve the asthmatic of much of the tension associated with the attack.

This three-pronged answer to bronchial asthma has had excellent results. If taken at the first signs of an attack it often prevents the condition from assuming major proportions; taken during the attack it acts speedily to reduce the severity and to bring breathing back to normal. A specially cased form of the tablet, which does not take effect for several hours, when taken before bedtime, prevents the asthmatic from middle-of-the-night attacks.

"A small town is where the lack of convention allows for more time to live and think clearly. The veneer of fatuous arguments is a thin shell which is torn, or a showing of the reality of things to show through. The problems of the people are closer and more real, and each close association with them and with things as they are."

"This, in part, is a small town, and let people who live in it is closer to the concepts of freedom, individual initiative and self realization than any other segment of land except the remote rural. It is the balance wheel in our social order."

While statistics that show the freedom and dignity of the individual is practical in a small town without a lot of people coaching from experts who think they know the minds of men. A man expects to earn what he merits and to get what he earns.

"A stranger becomes the focus of honest curiosity and the returning native always seems to be a little gladder."

The deeds of the town and its men of ten shine brighter in far away places. The words of a stranger often seem like important words.

When Appetite Fails

Physicians are as often faced with the problem of stimulating appetite in the case of a patient who is unable to eat. Children frequently refuse to eat. Even teenagers during convalescence follow this trend. And adults, too, sometimes lose their interest in food.

Sometimes the loss of the wish to eat is due to a physical cause. Sometimes it results from emotional upset. Less frequently it results from serious diseases in advanced stages.

The medical term for loss of appetite is anorexia. Specific physical causes of anorexia are anemia, cancer, alcoholism, drug addiction, lack of thiamine and similar depleting conditions.

Stimulating the appetite in such cases is a difficult task. It is possible, effectively to treat the basic disease. In any case, when appetite remains for a sufficiently long time that you notice it, it may be you require medical attention. Physicians usually prescribe medication for proper appetite stimulation for such conditions and for convalescence following illness or an operation.

One of the first medically prescribed appetite stimulating preparations and one which is still the choice of many physicians, is Gray's Compound. This formula, originally developed by Dr. John Gray more than 60 years ago, is now recognized officially by inclusion in the National Formulary of the United States. Gray's Compound, a safe and effective appetite stimulant, has been used with outstanding success as a specific appetite stimulant. This recognition is well maintained throughout the years.

The current bill will extend credit authorizations to three years, loan limits to $3,000,000 and otherwise liberalize the system. The proposed legislation still does not go far enough, but is an improvement.

"Every man to his own trade," American Folk Lore.

A column about water skiing has been something I've wanted to publish for several weeks. What with summer here and water sports at their peak. However, whenever I encounter a subject with which I am not too familiar I try to locate a real expert to do the writing—a guest column. Such an expert (on water skiing) has been located and he is none other than L. M. Stephenson, of Maitland. After considerable persuasion on my part "Steve" finally sat down to his typewriter and wrote the following piece which, I think all readers will agree, is a splendid column. Moreover, it may save lives! So now for "Steve's" excellent notes on water skiing:

"Water skiing is becoming Florida's best thrill. Been doing it since I was 12. It's a lot better get it at it for now is the time and this is the place. The old heads already acquainted with the thrills—and spills—connected with flying on the water should not dally around counting up the last winter's 'lake' but should get out the old skis, skis and line and get onto the water now, for it will be winter again before you know it. Also take along a life jacket and use it—live a long time, happily.

"This wonderful state of affairs is full of lakes, most of which are all speckled with boats, speeding or dallying here and there. The same thing might happen to you if you don't know the fun in the water, you might get a little tap on the head that is really great and worthwhile sport and getting the kick it is as simple as A-B-C. The only precautions needed are to first strap on a life jacket—you can get one for from three to seven dollars, after which the skier and the boatman should pay close attention to each other. That's about all, the rest of it will just naturally work itself out. The boatman should stay clear of other boats, docks and snags, as well as other skiers and one should practice the art a long, long time before doing anything funny. The line should be firmly tied on the best in position that it will not interfere with the operation of the motor and the boatman should guard against its fouling the propeller. He should never, never yield to any temptation to let the skier and should comply quickly with any request the skier makes or indicates. The weekly banner was presented to Mrs. Jean Cross's class of 11 year girls. Mrs. Cross, who is substitute teacher for this group of girls, Second grade, for the banner was the class of Mr. Waddell's 10 year boys and third place went to Mrs. Jesse Bergman's class of 9 year boys. Next Sunday awards will be presented to Susan Clark and Alvin Schleier for having completed the required memory work for the past quarter. The party for the Juniors was held Monday night with a feast of hot dogs and baked beans at the park followed by a trip to Pahokee to attend the annual fireworks display. Mr. Lamar Willis, who is educational director for the church this summer, assisted the teachers and officers with the party. All juniors and teachers enjoyed a great evening of food and fun.

They are missing by not getting a pair of skis and simply stepping overboard to try on the water. Actually, of course, they don't start alongside the boat. He usually puts the skis on his boots while standing or sitting in shallow water, then he sort of snowshoes out on his own power until he is in the water. He usually divides and has two wooden grips for his hands, the other end being attached to a power driven boat. He leans back on the heels of the skis, with the skis toes above the surface, until the pull of the boat launches him upward and forward. A speed of eight or ten miles is needed to start. After that the more the better. There's nothing like it! First, however, the skis should be on a life jacket, regardless of how good a swimmer he is and regardless of the neighbors saying he looks like a (live) fish. Did you ever fall down your own front steps while you were going out to get the morning paper, cold sober? Well, the same thing might happen in the water, you might get a little tap on the head that is really great and worthwhile sport and getting the kick it is as simple as A-B-C. The only precautions needed are to first strap on a life jacket—you can get one for from three to seven dollars, after which the skier and the boatman should pay close attention to each other. RECTOR PRAISES NEW FLAG SALUTE

The saying that the American dream was conceived in a deep faith in Almighty God, Father John Clarence Petrie, last Sunday said his congregation at St. John the Apostle Church, Belle Glade, that the addition of "under God" in the Pledge of Allegiance was a step in the recovery of the partnership between God and America. Had this been brushed a few years ago, the vicar said, there would have been raised a hue and cry of "Church and State." But now, religion, which had been virtually outlawed from our schools by the Supreme Court decision in the released time decision, is one more admitted. The new salute to the Flag became almost an act of divine worship. But it will do no good unless we really mean to put our country and our personal lives under the control of God.

A Hymn Is Born

The Sweet By and By

A hymn is born of a casual remark

Like many another temperamental artist, Composer Joseph Webster had his off days. So when he wandered into the office of Dr. Sanford Bennett, where he usually hangs his hat and violin, "the doctor knew the musician was in the dumps. 'What's the trouble now?' Bennett asked Webster, who had his back to the physician and the stove.

"Oh, nothing," came the dejected reply. "Everything will be all right by and by."

"The doctor turned back his desk where he wrote prescriptions as a profession and verse as a hobby. 'By and by,' he mused. 'The sweet by and by.' He paused, looked up at Webster, then reached for writing paper.

Joseph Filbrick Webster was an out and out musician. In the East, where he was born in 1919, he had been an active member of the Handel and Haydn Society and a prolific composer of popular songs. In his early thirties he migrated to Indiana, and in 1957 settled in Elkhart, Wis. When the verse writing physician, Sanford Bennett, moved to the same town in 1957, the two struck up a partnership in the production of sheet music. After six years Bennett had taken the music from Webster. He had soon learned that the best prescription for his patient's doctor of melancholia was a batch of verses to set to music. But on that autumn day in 1957 the doctor had no remedy in stock. But Webster's casual remark had given him a theme . . . not for another of their popular songs, but for a church hymn.

While the physician wrote hastily at his desk a chorus, in less than five minutes Webster wrote the words. The doctor wrote the words, the composer had the music. He gave the melody a few rounds on his violin and the four men sang for the first time.

Our beautiful Father above,
We will offer the tribute of praise,
For the glorious gift of His love,
And the blessings that follow our days.

In the sweet by and by,
We shall meet our beautiful shore;
In the sweet by and by,
We shall meet our beautiful shore.

In lieu of a vacation my office will be closed during the summer months . . .

WHAT THE MARINE CORPS OFFER YOU

"What the Marine Corps Offers You" will be discussed by Sergeant Elwood A. Miller during "Open House" at the Belle Glade Draft Board every Tuesday from 10:00 am 'til 1:00 pm. The recruiter from West Palm Beach invites local men and women who are interested in learning of the many opportunities offered by the Leatherstocking Corps to meet him during his visit. Pointing up the benefits of the G-I Bill offered in the current three year Marine Corps enlistment, Miller urges prospective volunteers to join now before the G-I Law is terminated. "Recent news reports from Washington seem to indicate that the G-I Bill passed during the Korean conflict will soon expire," he said.

"What the Marine Corps Offers will be of particular interest to high school graduates and those wishing to earn credits towards a high school diploma," he declared. "The Marine Corps Institute offers correspondence courses in almost every subject and credits earned through the Institute are recognized by leading colleges and universities," he added.

For further information, contact Sgt. Miller at the Belle Glade Draft Board next Tuesday.

Outline For The INTERNATIONAL UNION SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

July 11, 1964

LESSON TOPIC: "A LOOK AT OURSELVES"

SCRIPTURE LESSON: 1 Corinthians 3:1-2; Ephesians 4:11-16; II Peter 1:5-8, 3:18

By Rev. Robert Ford

INTRODUCTION:

This lesson is in the form of a question directed to each who profess to be followers of Christ. We are to examine ourselves as to whether or not we are growing as Christians. Someone has said that physically men grow by exercise, but that spiritually they grow by surrender. We grow as we surrender our wills to the will of God in Christ.

I. THE COMMAND TO GROW — II Peter 3:18

This is to ensure to enjoy full benefits of the Christian Life. To grow in the likeness of Him who is Life.

II. BABES IN CHRIST — I Corinthians 3:1-3

The believer at first has not the capacity to understand and to be all that God would have him know and have him be.

III. THE MEASURE OF THE STATURE OF THE FULLNESS OF CHRIST — Ephesians 4:11-16

The Christian is not to remain a "Babe in Christ" but is to grow; this growth is an attainment of Christlikeness.

IV. THE MARKS OF CHRISTIAN CHARACTER

When Christ faith produces Christian character, the Christian life is not barren or unfruitful in the service of Jesus Christ.

CONCLUSION:

No Christian ever becomes like Christ without discipline. We must discipline ourselves in habits of Prayer and Bible reading, in habits of worship and prayer, in following the service. Peter says we must "make every effort to supplement our faith with virtue" etc. The Lord takes no pleasure in the deterioration of a Christian. Our business is growing!

How Advertising helps you

BY CHARLES B. ROTH

Life at Both Ends

ONE of the most fascinating and at the same time humane developments of this generation is the lengthening of the life span. Not only do those who are being born have a better chance to survive the precarious first years, which formerly cost so many babies' lives, but they have a chance of living far longer than their mothers and fathers, grandmothers and grandfathers.

For this, credit most of the credit, that is, must go to the science of medicine.

But please have a little credit and give it to advertising, because it is a direct and powerful way advertising has been partially responsible for the increased health and longer life of Americans.

You may be wondering how advertising, formerly only a selling device, can be so important. It is. You may recall from reading that I mentioned the fact of advertising's acquiring a third dimension—a service dimension, which has nothing to do with the sale of goods, only of ideas.

New Jersey Man Heads BPO Elks

The new ruler of America's Elks for many years headed the youth program and crippled children activities of the New Jersey State Elks Association. He has been prominent in national affairs of the Order since 1949, having served as Grand Treasurer from 1950 to 1952 and a member of the Grand Council of Grand Trustees from 1952 to the present.

Retiring Grand Exalted Ruler James informed delegates at the opening business session that the Order's membership showed a gain for the 15th consecutive year. The year's gain of 25,800 carried Elks membership to the record high of 1,172,803 as of March 31, James reported. Thirty-five new Lodges organized during the year brought the total to 1,685.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Clayton and A. E. Kirschman are attending the Elks Convention representing the local Elks lodge.

Robert W. Wall, Jr. joins Florida Power & Light.

Appointment of Robert W. Wall, Jr., former special agent in charge of the Miami FBI office, as personnel director of Florida Power & Light Company, was announced today by President Robert H. Fite.

With the announcement of the promotion of Wall, the FPL's president said, "Our $300 million, 10-year expansion program calls for a greatly expanded organization. During this expansion our organization of efficient personnel will be of vital importance. There are now more than 4,400 employees on the company roster, about half of them located in the Miami area," Fite continued. "By 1961," he stated, "we expect the number to reach 8,000. These men and women will be needed to man our expanded power plants, to install and maintain hundreds of miles of the Nutley Sym-Of line, to serve the public in company offices, and numerous specialized jobs.

"A well-coordinated program is planned to keep FPL's standards of employment uniformly high throughout the state. Expansion of our training program is also planned to give company members an opportunity to better fit themselves for advancement and constantly improve their organization as to continue to give topnotch service to our customers.

To administer this comprehensive new program, we needed a personnel director with broad administrative experience and a sincere interest in the fellow man. In Bob Wall we are fortunate to have found such a man," stated Fite.

Before joining FPL in 1935 as executive assistant to Fite, Wall was head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. During that time he was in charge of the FBI office here, which was recognized as one of the FBI's outstanding agents and had the distinction of being the second youngest agent in charge of a field office.

Wall is a native Mississippian, and was educated at the University of Mississippi, where he received Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Laws degrees. After entering the FBI in 1934, he was on confidential assignment outside the United States for several years and later served as agent in charge of the Albany, N. Y. FBI office.

For three years, he was assigned to the FBI's Washington headquarters, where he worked on the Federal employee loyalty program. He then moved to 335 N. E. 101st St., with his wife and two daughters, will travel over Florida, but will make his headquarters in Miami. He is a member of the Rotary, Daddies Club of the South, a member of the Executive Board of the South Florida Council of Boy Scouts and an associate member of the Dade County Chiefs of Police Association.

ONE OUT OF EVERY FOUR AUTO DRIVERS HAVE BEEN IN AN ACCIDENT

36% Say They've Driven 75 MPH Or More

By Kenneth Fink, Director, Princeton Research Service

With the long July Fourth weekend over with its customary toll of smash-ups, injuries, and deaths, the United States has collected some facts for drivers to keep in mind. On the road has had an automobile accident while he was at the wheel.

2. A higher proportion of men than women drivers have had an accident while driving, and somewhat more younger drivers than older ones have been in accidents.

3. More than one out of every three drivers, or 36 percent, has driven a car 75 miles an hour or more at some time or other.

4. And one out of every ten drivers admitted to driving 95 miles an hour or more on open highways, with 115 miles an hour being the top speed named.

5. And in every section of the country at least one out of every five drivers has been in an accident, ranging from a low of 28 in the Midwest to a low of 20% in the Far West.

That's what United States Poll reporters found after talking personally with a representative cross-section of the nation's adults in every section of the country.

Today's Poll first asked each person:

"What is the fastest speed you have ever driven a car?" Here are the replies of 49,699 percent who drive or have driven:

Fastest Speed Driven?

45 mph or less — 11%
50 to 54 mph — 11%
55 to 64 mph — 16%
65 to 74 mph — 17%
75 to 84 mph — 15%
85 to 94 mph — 11%
95 mph or more — 10%

The above figures do not necessarily mean that car operators always drive as fast as the top speed mentioned. But they do show that many motorists feel the urge to see how fast their cars can go.

A total of 31%, or roughly 30 million adults, stated that they had never driven a car. 14 percent of the men have never been at the wheel, compared to 44 percent of the women.

A second question was asked of all those who drive:

"Have you ever been in an accident while you were driving?"

Yes No

Nationwide — 75% 25%

Men — 30% 70%

21 - 29 years — 18% 82%

30 - 44 years — 25% 75%

45 years & over — 24% 76%

Survey findings show that fewer people living in the Far West say they have been in an accident than do people in other sections of the country.

In An Accident While at the Wheel?

East — 25% 75%

Midwest — 25% 75%

South — 25% 75%

Far West — 20% 80%

Over the years, Princeton Research Service in various parts of the country and in the nation as a whole has found widespread popular sentiment in favor of measures to control accidents and speeding.

For example, solid majority sentiment — better than three out of every five — favors jail terms for drivers found guilty of driving while drunk.

Nearly seven out of every ten say they would be willing to have a governor (regulator) put on their cars that would let them drive no faster than 50 miles per hour at any time.

And 50 miles per hour was the median average named by drivers when they were asked what they themselves thought should be the maximum (top) speed for automobiles on open highways.

The Herald presents the reports of the United States Poll exclusively in this area. The service is operated by the Princeton Research Service staff of trained report. (Copyright, 1954, by Princeton Research Service.)

DOES YOUR BOAT COMPLY WITH CG REGULATIONS

The Coast Guard has issued a warning for commercial and pleasure boats.

Their motorboats comply with current U. S. motorboat regulations.

To enforce the regulations and to emphasize safety afloat, the Coast Guard has been boarding both commercial and pleasure motorboats, while underway, checking for required life-saving equipment, fire extinguishers, running lights, ventilation systems, and proper placement of the motor.

Motorboats towed in or assisted by the Coast Guard are subject to fines for lack of the required equipment. For example: each life-saving device missing can cost $100; no fire extinguisher, $100. On boats carrying passengers for hire the fine is doubled.

During the past three years, 7th District Coast Guardsmen have boarded over 8,500 boats, with 548 violations issued.

Supplementing the Coast Guard boarding check is the Coast Guard Auxiliary's Courtesy Motorboat Examination Program.

Trained civilian Auxiliaries offer a free examination of pleasure motorboats while at the dock, for the required safety items. If the boat complies with motorboat regulations, and additional safety recommendations of the Auxiliary, the owner is given an Auxiliary decal; if the boat does not come up to the required standards, correct safety items and advice are recommended without penalty.

Coast Guard boarding parties honor the Coast Guard Auxiliary decal unless an actual violation is noted.

NEGRO NEWS

KEECHOBEE CAMP NEWS

The sun is still hot around the camp, and there is no place to go. We will just stay here and do the best we can.

The surprise of the week came to the Pool table when Harvey Poole surprised his wife on their twenty-fifth anniversary. Many friends were there to aid in the celebration. Among those were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Harrell, Mrs. Ivory Davis, Mrs. Ghent, Mr. and Mrs. Bythwood, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dobard and others. Mrs. Poole received numerous gifts and she really enjoyed her surprise.

The recreation program at Vocational High is still going strong. This week the Senior boys played five basketball games against Lake Shore Elementary School. We won three of the five games.

Our basketball team is made up of the following members—Captain, Willie Parrish, Curly McGuff, Nathaniel Harrell, Les Dabley.

The Junior boys and girls played the Senior boys and girls two softball games with the Juniors taking the first game 12 to 8. The Seniors won the second game 20 to 12.

Mrs. Clay's group is busily engaged with rug making, sewing dresses, skirts, and aprons. All the girls are very proud of their handicraft. Mrs. Clay says, "I hope they will continue to work as cooperatively as they are working now."

The recreation group is looking forward to a fishing trip on Tuesday. We will take pictures and play games also.

Our guests for week were Mr. H. O. Eawson, School Board Member, and Mr. Jack Smith, County Superintendent Summer Recreation Program.

The outing over the weekend given by the Camp for the employees was a wonderful and most joyous experience. I'm sure that everyone enjoyed the barbeque prepared by Lester Roundtree. All the children as well as the grown-ups had a good time. There was plenty of fun for everyone. We want to thank Mr. Adams for his cooperation, also the two life guards, Homer Tolbert and Quentin Harrell. The whole camp was at its best behavior and we appreciate that very much.

The Palm Beach recreation team came to spend a day with the Kechobee recreation camp and the Belle Glade recreation group. They had plenty of playing games, softball and basketball. The Kechobee Glade recreation group won both games. The softball score was 16 to 6, the basketball score was 25 to 15. The winning pitcher was David Kennedy. He was relieved by D. B. Myhrhold in the sixth inning, the fourth inning at third base. Everyone went away happy. After the day's activities.
